be listed under more than one section and/or topic, an article was listed "first" under its "primary" topic, and then, only if deemed absolutely necessary, was it cited under another related topic. This balanced approach was taken to avoid creating a "monster" all-inclusive index, yet providing an index that is reasonably easy to use. The articles are listed chronologically under each section and topic. The "Postal History" topic includes articles on postal routes, postal rates, postal service (airmail service is in a separate Section), or the story of a cover (s). Generally, articles on the history of a particular stamp or stamp series are included under the "Stamps" topic. The format for listing each article is as follows:

- title
- [additional information, if needed]
- author
- publication
- date
- volume
- number
- page.

In cases where the title of the article does not clearly indicate its contents, a short, parenthetical description of the topic in brackets was added after the title to assist the reader.
