This cover, and the two cover on the preceding page, as well as others in this exhibit are so-called "Bruggmann" covers. Walter Bruggman was a noted philatelist in the Philippines in the early part of the 20th Century. He had an affinity for flight covers, registered covers and had significant correspondence with people all over the world. His covers can often be recognized by the use of both red and black ink in the address. He was fond of the Palace issue and utilized it in his mailings. Other than flight covers, his covers are not philatelic to the extent they are almost all properly franked and pay the correct postage rates.
